

Murrayville Community College Recruitment Practices

The child safe standards require organisations that provide services for children to have recruitment and screening practices that reduce the risk of child abuse.

Recruitment checklist for Murrayville Community College

Robust recruitment processes help ensure the best applicants are employed. From advertising through to conducting interviews and checking the background of applicants, it is important that each step is done consistently and thoroughly.

This checklist will guide Murrayville Community College through critical steps in the recruitment process. It includes objectives and examples for:

- selection criteria in job descriptions
- advertising
- face-to-face interviews including behavioural-based questions and questions about motives for wanting to work with children
- Working with Children Checks <www.workingwithchildren.vic.gov.au>
- police record checks and identity checks <www.police.vic.gov.au> (including international police record checks where necessary)
- reference checks over the telephone with recent line managers
- probation periods.

Selection criteria

Developing appropriate selection criteria for the position is a valuable first step to reducing the risk of appointing someone who poses a child safety risk. It will also ensure that applicants have the specific knowledge and skills required for the position.

Examples of appropriate selection criteria may include:

‘Must have experience working with children.’

‘Must be able to demonstrate an understanding of appropriate behaviours when engaging with children.’

Does the selection criteria clearly state the experience, qualifications, qualities and attributes expected from the successful applicant?
Does the selection criteria outline the supervision and accountability processes in place which support child safety?

Remember to ensure the selection criteria provides for the safety of all children. The applicants should have the opportunity to indicate their understanding of, or any experience they have in working with children with diverse needs and/or backgrounds.

Murrayville Community College Recruitment Practices

Does the selection criteria include a demonstration of the needs of children with a disability?
Does the selection criteria include a demonstration of Aboriginal cultural safety and awareness?
Does the selection criteria include a demonstration of cultural safety for children from culturally and/or linguistically diverse backgrounds?

Advertising

Planning your advertisement and its placement provides a good opportunity to demonstrate your commitment to safeguarding children and deter would-be offenders.

Does the advertisement include a message about the school's commitment to child safety?
Does the advertisement include reference to your code of conduct and child safe policy?
Does the advertisement inform applicants that appropriate rigorous reference and background checking will be undertaken, including a Working with Children Check and police record and identity check?

It is imperative that Murrayville Community College promotes the safety, participation and empowerment of all children, including those with a disability. A suggested approach may be:

'This college promotes the safety, wellbeing and inclusion of all children, including those with a disability. Applicants are welcome to elaborate on experience they may have working with children with a disability.'

Has the job advertisement included a statement about the school's commitment to the safety, participation and empowerment of all children, including those with a disability?

Interviews

The interview process is a very important step in selecting the right people for Murrayville Community College and in identifying any people who may pose a risk to children. Sufficient time needs to be allowed to plan and prepare for the interview process, and form an interview panel with the right mix of experience and skills to carry out the interview, ensuring that all panel members are clear on what the position requires.

An open-ended style of behavioural-based questioning will give you insight into the applicant's values, attitudes and understanding of professional boundaries and accountability. Some useful questions may include:

'Tell us about why you want to work with children?'

'Describe a time when you had to manage a child whose behaviour you found challenging?'

'Tell us about a time when you had to comfort a distressed child?'

Has the panel prepared a list of open-ended questions which will determine how the interviewee will behave in certain situations?

Take notice of the panel members own thoughts and feelings when interacting with the applicant. Ask for more information if the applicant does not provide sufficient information in his or her responses.

Did the panel notice any warning signs such as:

- | | |
|--|--|
| • Unexplained lengthy gaps in employment history | |
| • The applicant says they do not value or 'need' supervision | |
| • The applicant is evasive or inconsistent in his or her answers | |

Pre-employment screening

Screening applicants (including for paid and volunteer positions) is a good tool for helping to prevent people who may abuse children from entering Murrayville Community College.

Police checks

It is important to be upfront and ask the applicant if they have any criminal convictions, formal disciplinary action taken against them, or any finding of improper or unprofessional conduct. This could involve the applicant signing a declaration as part of an application form.

The panel could also cover this in a face-to-face interview. This may be challenging for the interview panel, particularly if the person is already known to the members, but the applicant's response should demonstrate a sufficient level of professionalism as well as an understanding of your obligations. To help introduce this difficult topic, the panel could say to the applicant that we have some specific questions about child safety because this school takes child safety seriously.

Have the panel included a question about whether the applicant has any criminal convictions, cautions, other legal or pending cases, including formal disciplinary action, which may affect their suitability to work with children?
If addressed during a face-to-face interview, did the panel take notice of how the applicant responds to questions with regard to his or her words and body language?
Have you undertaken a police record check (which includes identity check)?

Working with Children Check

Under the Working with Children Act 2005, people who are doing child-related work, and who are not exempt¹, need a Working with Children Check. This applies to both paid and volunteer workers. Full details of the Working with Children Check process can be found on the Working with Children website <www.workingwithchildren.vic.gov.au>.

Does the applicant hold a valid Working with Children Check, if required? Have you checked the validity of their Working with Children Check < online.justice.vic.gov.au/wwccu/checkstatus.doj >?. OR If the applicant does not hold a valid Working with Children Check, and it is required, has the applicant provided evidence that they have applied for a Working with Children Check, and does Murrayville Community College have processes to follow up pending applications?
Has the applicant provided the panel with evidence of their Working with Children Check, or evidence of their application for a Working with Children Check?

Referee checks

The panel should always talk to at least two referees as this can provide insight into the applicant's character and skills. Line managers, particularly the most recent, are likely to provide you with the most accurate reference. Where possible, referees that can provide insights into the applicant's experience working with children should be contacted.

Do the referees provided by the applicant include line managers who can be objective, rather than colleagues or friends?
Has the applicant provided their most recent line manager as a referee? If not, have they provided you with a satisfactory reason?
Has the panel spoken to at least two of the referees by telephone? Did they confirm with them their name and position provided to them by the applicant?

When speaking with the referees, the panel should seek to establish the referee's relationship with the applicant, including:

- how long the applicant and referee worked together
- the specifics of the position
- the applicant's perceived strengths and weaknesses

¹ For example, teachers and police officers are exempt because they undergo other thorough background checking.

Murrayville Community College Recruitment Practices

- whether the referee would hire the person again, particularly in a role working with children, and whether they have any concerns about the applicant working with children.

You should ask referees directly about any concerns they may have about the applicant working with children. To help introduce this difficult topic, the panel could say we have some specific questions about child safety because this school takes child safety seriously.

Take note of any pauses or gaps in the referee's responses.

Ask behaviour-based questions like:

• 'What did the applicant do when...[for example, they had to comfort a distressed child]?'
• 'Do you have any concerns about the applicant's attitude towards Aboriginal peoples / people from culturally and/or linguistically diverse backgrounds / people with a disability?'
• 'Do you have any concerns about the applicant working with children?'
• 'Would you employ this person again?'

Additional checks

Additional checks will confirm the identity of the applicant and that their responses have been truthful.

Has the panel checked the identity of the applicant (for example, that their driver's licence/passport has the same name they have provided you)?
Did the panel see a certified copy of the applicant's qualifications (if required)?

Probation periods

Probation periods can help you assess a new staff member's performance and suitability for the job before confirming their permanent employment. If you have any concerns about the person working with children, you should seriously consider whether you want them to remain in the job at this school.

The length of probation periods can vary and is usually between three and six months.

You should consider whether the person should receive closer supervision and additional training throughout the probation period. A probation period can offer an opportunity to set goals with new staff members and identify training, supervision and other support needs.
